

Justice and solidarity

Fundación Tzedaká is a civil society organization. Founded within the Jewish community, it not only supports its most vulnerable members but has also played a key role in Argentina's development by driving real improvements in the quality of life for thousands of people living in poverty and at risk.

With its strong track record, scalable programs, broad reach, ability to mobilize financial and volunteer resources, significant budget, and commitment to collaborative work, Fundación Tzedaká is one of Argentina's largest social organizations. A total of 6,500 individual donors, companies, and institutions contribute to sustaining its mission.

What We Do

Tzedaká means Justice and Solidarity. The restoration of every person's right to live with dignity. Guided by this principle, we develop social programs that provide effective and efficient solutions to thousands of people in need.

We promote the well-being and improvement of the quality of life of vulnerable families through social guidance, food and housing subsidies, and the development of empowerment programs.

We strive to ensure that vulnerable children, teenagers, and young adults complete their primary, secondary, and university education through educational guidance, scholarships, and tutoring. We also provide support spaces, training, and job placement opportunities for young people and adults.

We provide free nationwide distribution of medications to chronic patients, social organizations, and hospitals. We also develop health promotion and prevention programs.

We work to improve their quality of life, uphold their rights, and restore dignity to their lives. We develop initiatives that promote active aging, ensure their well-being, and foster socialization and community integration.

We strengthen collaboration with the national government, the Province of Buenos Aires, the City of Buenos Aires, companies, and organizations by donating medications and clothing to hospitals and NGOs.

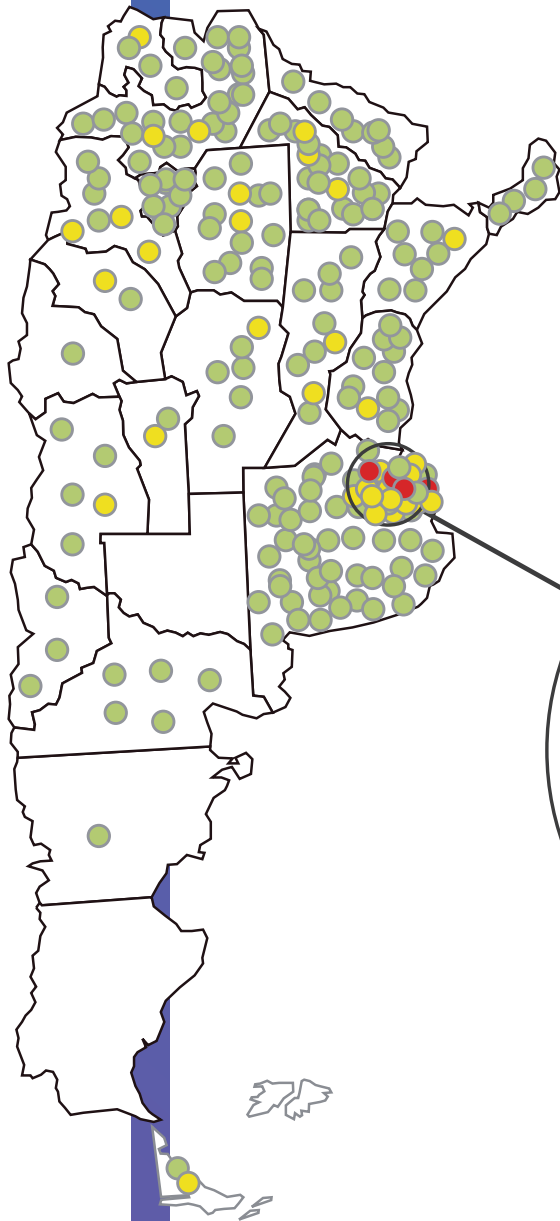

We support the circular economy by receiving all types of donations, which are then sold to generate funds for the Foundation's social programs.

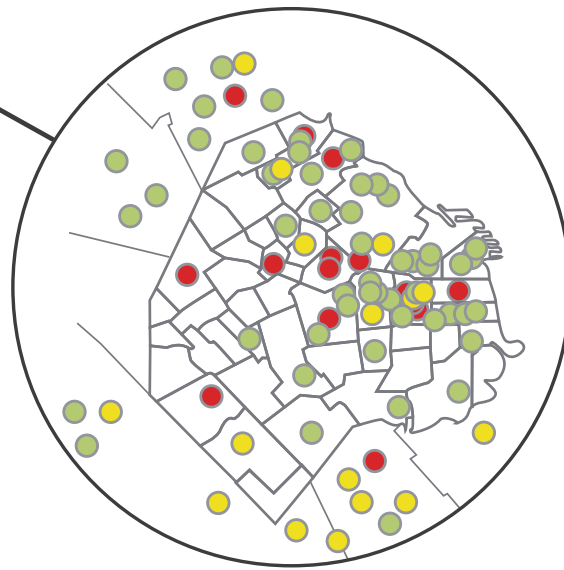

We promote sustainability, social inclusion, and quality products at affordable prices through the country's first online store for refurbished appliances with a social mission.
